

GREENWOOD WILDLIFE REHABILITATION CENTER

Annual Report for 2014

Injured Canada Goose

Our Mission

Greenwood's mission is to rehabilitate sick, injured and orphaned wildlife for release into appropriate habitats. Greenwood also strives to educate the public, emphasizing humane solutions to human/wildlife interactions.

History of Greenwood

In 1982, the Humane Society of Boulder Valley (HSBV) founded a wildlife rehabilitation center at their facility. One year later, the family and friends of Natalie Gneiser, a young woman who was killed while trying to rescue an injured dog on the highway, donated memorial funds to this cause. Subsequently, the center was named after her — the Natalie Gneiser Wildlife Rehabilitation Center.

During the next 14 years, the number of animals brought to the Center for care increased 20-30% annually. Meanwhile, the City of Boulder grew around HSBV and providing a quiet and secure environment for recuperating animals became increasingly difficult.

In March 1993, the Center incorporated due to its continuous growth and changed its name to Greenwood Wildlife Rehabilitation Sanctuary to reflect its mission. Greenwood was the name of the Center's first rehabilitated raccoon, which had been burned in a chimney fire.

A second major change came in 1997 when Greenwood secured a lease for property between Longmont and Lyons. For the next 10 years, Greenwood operated out of two modular units on this site. Caging was built for raccoons, songbirds, squirrels, rabbits, coyotes and foxes.

In 2006, a building committee began to address the need for a new facility — a dream of Greenwood for many years and something that was badly needed. In 2007, Greenwood received a substantial contribution from a donor to purchase the previously leased property on Highway 66 plus an additional 1.5 acres.

Another large contribution provided funds to help construct a new, larger structure, with donations coming from many other supporters.

Construction began in 2008, and Greenwood moved into the new building in early 2009. This new facility was a great step forward as well as a testament to the commitment of Greenwood's supporters and the broader community to provide hope for orphaned and injured wildlife.

Fundraising efforts and the annual budget continued to increase with the addition of a Thrift Shop in 2004 and an annual major event, Wild Night for Wildlife, in 2009. In 2012, Greenwood relocated the Thrift Shop and expanded its retail efforts to include a Consignment Gallery, the only nonprofit store of its kind in Boulder County. Education and Outreach programming, the other important component of the Greenwood mission, continues to grow.

Since inception, more than 140 species have been rehabilitated at Greenwood. With only a small year-round staff, the majority of personnel needed to operate the Center (changed from "Sanctuary" in 2008) are the more than 400 volunteers, interns, and seasonal staff who work diligently from March through October. Greenwood currently has 16 wildlife rehabilitators licensed by the Colorado Division of Parks and Wildlife. Our success rate remains high as we all work together to save Colorado's wildlife.

From the Board President

Dearest Supporters,

One short year after Boulder County was devastated by the worst flooding Colorado has ever seen, the people of our community have made great progress. Thanks to the amazing work done at Greenwood, the wildlife community has also rebounded. However, along with great successes in 2014, we were also faced with many challenges. The closing of two major centers on the Front Range means that Greenwood is the sole rehabilitation facility in the northern region that can care for songbirds, waterfowl and shorebirds along with mammals.

When WildKind in Larimer County closed two years ago, injured and orphaned wildlife, and the people trying to help them, were able to turn to Greenwood thanks to hard work by our staff and volunteers. In September of 2014, Wild B.I.R.D. in Denver was forced to close its doors. Until a new facility can be built, the 3,000+ birds that the organization rehabilitates each year face an uncertain future. Greenwood is the only hope for our feathered friends.

Trying to accommodate the demand for rehabilitation services created by these closures has increased the number of animals treated at Greenwood from 2,265 in 2013 to more than 2,500 in 2014. That number is expected to grow higher in 2015. As you can imagine, caring for that many patients is an immense amount of work for our talented staff and dedicated volunteers. In all, 469 animal care volunteers logged more than 10,600 hours and 42 interns provided more than 5,800 hours of service in 2014 — all under the direction of 16 Colorado Licensed Rehabilitators and our administrative staff. We couldn't be more proud of the outcome of all of their hard work.

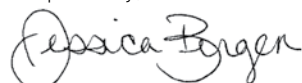

Public outreach and education about our cause remains a major priority for the organization. The Education & Outreach Team attended 59 events this past year. The message behind our mission reached 2,898 youths and adults. We'll have representatives at several new events this year, like the Youth of the Earth Festival at Boulder County Fairgrounds, so be on the lookout for our Greenwood banner.

Resources to support the great work done at Greenwood come from many sources, but the highlight each year is our big event, Wild Night for Wildlife. I am proud to announce that in 2014 our generous supporters donated just over $100,000 at our annual fundraiser! Further support comes from the Greenwood Thrift Shop & Consignment Gallery — also run by dedicated volunteers and staff. Come visit our stores at 3600 Arapahoe in Boulder to shop our diverse consignment gallery and get great bargains on unique treasures at the Thrift Shop!

I also want to take the opportunity to acknowledge Greenwood's wonderful Board of Directors. Without their dedication, the organization would not be what it is today. Board members spent countless hours carrying out goals of the 2014 Strategic Plan, keeping Greenwood moving in the right direction — enjoying successful year after successful year.

A year that has seen highs and lows and successes and challenges motivates Greenwood to work harder to meet the needs of the wildlife community. It is only with the assistance and backing from our amazing supporters that we are able to do what we do. Thank you for a great 2014 and here's to an even better 2015!

Respectfully,

Jessica Bergen

Volunteer, Internship and Education & Outreach Programs

Summary

Greenwood would not be able to care for more than 2,500 animals each year without the thousands of hours dedicated by hundreds of volunteers. Our Volunteer Program welcomed a total of 511 volunteers and interns during 2014, who donated 23,907 hours to animal care, education and outreach, Thrift Shop & Consignment Gallery assistance, fundraising and more. The majority of their time was spent caring for baby mammals, songbirds and waterfowl/shorebirds between the months of March and October, our baby season.

Greenwood's Internship Program welcomed Mimi Gillatt as the new program coordinator this year. She broadened the program by increasing hands-on instruction, updating and adding content to training, and conducting more thorough applicant interviews, resulting in a higher quality program. Forty-three of 70 applicants were accepted in 2014; 41 chose to participate, donating 5,810 hours of animal care time. The majority of our interns are from Colorado, but the number of out-of-state applicants continues to grow annually.

Greenwood's Education & Outreach Program included three new offerings this year, in addition to our customized presentations: a puppet show, the Greenwood Ambassador program for children and our Worm Wrangling kits. We reached close to 2,900 adults and children via 59 different presentations throughout Boulder County and beyond, educating them about our local wildlife along the Front Range as well as humane solutions to human/wildlife interactions. Venues included volunteer and career fairs, environmental-related events, public and private grade-school classrooms, library programs, summer camps, Girl Scout and Boy Scout meetings, birthday parties and more.

Greenwood Thrift Shop and Consignment Gallery

Fulfilling Our Goals

On our Consignment Gallery website we state: "Our purpose is to raise operational funds for the rehabilitation center while serving the public's need for a place to consign and purchase high-quality, gently-used and reasonably-priced home furnishings, jewelry, artwork and home decor."

In 2014, our third year with the new gallery, we are confident because we have met our goals and are enthusiastic about moving forward to many more successful years supporting the Center and local wildlife. Consignor, donor and customer response was remarkable. Total sales in the gallery increased more than 21%, with the most dramatic increases occurring in the second half of the year.

Our Thrift Shop also experienced an increase in sales. We attribute this steady growth to the continued support of our in-kind donors who think of Greenwood first when deciding where to bring their items.

Last year, our stores contributed close to $50,000 to the Center while providing countless opportunities to raise awareness in the community about the animals in our care. In 2015, we aim to surpass this goal.

It is clear that we have found our place in the Boulder community and beyond. With your continued support, and our strong reputation as the premier destination for consignment, donations and sales, we will continue to grow and support the work of the Center.
