Support Wildlife at Wild Night Virtual - Registration is FREE!

Join us for our VIRTUAL Wild Night for Wildlife on Saturday, September 19. Happy hour, preview, and log-in are from 5:15 - 6:00 pm, and the live virtual event is from 6:00 - 7:15 pm. This is the first time that our biggest fundraiser of the year will not take place in person in its 12-year history. We still promise you a fantastic time! The event will include:

A week-long online auction with something for everyone that opens mid-morning on Wednesday, September 16 and closes at 7 pm on Tuesday, September 22

Virtual Heads and Tails Game with a chance to win $400 in Target gift cards

A heartwarming special appeal and entertaining live auction featuring captivating auctioneer, Don Martin

As the top bidder, you could enjoy one of many live auction items including:

- * Escape the city to mountain getaways in Estes Park*
- * An elegant five-course dinner for eight at the Boulder Cork*
- * Three nights in a Silverthorne condo*

Thanks so much to our sponsors to date, listed below!

Enjoy the event in the privacy of your home, ask friends to join you for a great evening of bonding to support Greenwood. Registration is free, but please consider making a tax-deductible donation to help offset our expenses.

Wildlife Stories

It's a hard duck life. Especially when you are new to the world and all alone. Luckily for this Wood Duckling, he wandered into the yard of a loving family. As they were leaving their house, they spotted a little duck running down the road! The children in the car hopped out and chased him until they were able to place him safely in one of their chicken pens that had a small pool and was isolated from other backyard animals. They waited for a sign of mom that day but didn't see her anywhere. As dusk approached, they kept the baby warm with a heated water bottle and tucked his ventilated box into a storage area for the night.

Enjoying a cool night in the mountains is even better by the warm fire (although we don't recommend fires during these dry times!). The Woodrats must have been thinking the same thing when they became stowaways near a car's engine. A family enjoyed a nice weekend in the mountains and returned to their home in Longmont shortly after. The unknowing woman spent the next day running errands, including taking her car through the wash. Then she heard squeaking under the hood and took it to the mechanic for further inspection. They opened the hood, and out shot a mama Woodrat with her two babies. Surprisingly, the

The next morning, they brought him to Greenwood where we kept him for 20 days. During that time, he learned to chase crickets and scavenge for duckweed. We were so happy when he took off into the wild, a free bird once again.

rodent family wasn't burned from the heat of the engine. They were brought to Greenwood so we could assess their health and return them to the proper habitat. Unfortunately, one of the babies didn't survive. The mother and second baby did well and were happily released!
